Mr. and Mrs. Heckert express themselves as being highly pleased with the work of J. W. Ball, as undertaker, in preparing the remains of Mrs. Heckert's mother, Mrs. Barr, for interment, and for the long journey they were taken for burial. Everything was perfect at the end of the journey, and the undertaker in Ohio, and all of the friends, gave expressions of great praise for Mr. Ball's work.

Mr. E. S. Hoskins with his family, St. Louis, Mich., has been spending a few days in Paw Paw at the home of his parents. Mr. H. has been engaged in newspaper work in this state, at Bellevue and St. Louis, for a number of years, but has recently severed his connection therewith, and accepted an appointment which will require his presence at Washington during the session of the fifty-first congress.

Walter Wilson has had some very handsome specimens of dressed animals on exhibition at his market during the last few days. Among them were the following: one carcass (mutton) 13 months old, weight 153 lbs. Bred and raised by E. A. Wiley. One carcass (lamb) six and one-half months old, weight 68 lbs. Bred and raised by Charles Richmond. One carcass (calf) ninety-one days old, weight 296 lbs. Bred and raised by Wm. Pugsley.

The W. C. T. U. held a very interesting camp-fire at the M. E. church last Sunday evening, which was largely attended. Mrs. F. L. Foster gave a review of the crusade movement in Ohio. Mrs. Jesse Brown portrayed the horrors of Andersonville prison. We heard of the audience remark that "Jeff. Davis, who was wholly responsible for the sufferings of the boys in Andersonville, was in entire sympathy and accord with the third party prohibitionists." We do not touch for the truthfulness of the statement.

A Pleasant Surprise.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tuckey having begun their journey down the matrimonial highway on Dec. 25th, 1864, last Wednesday passed the twenty-fifth mile stone, and in commemoration thereof, were invited to take tea with their son Ed., who has a cosy home of his own not far from the paternal residence.

Early in the evening they started for home. "Grandpa John" going on ahead, when by a most slight greeting he beheld his dominion surrounded by shadowy forms, some of whom were peering in at windows, others reconnoitering the back entrance, while an organized body of house breakers were coolly picking the lock of the side door. Mr. Tuckey took in the situation at a glance, and as soon as within halting distance shouted, "Hold on, boys, I've a key that will fit better than yours," and, in a twinkling, the laughing crowd was making itself scarce at home. Mrs. Tuckey arriving soon after, showed unmistakable signs that the "surprise" was complete. After an hour of social enjoyment, J. W. Free cornered the worthy couple, and presented a beautiful silver water-set and a case containing nut-picks and cracker, addressing them with the following appropriate little speech:

"Mr. and Mrs. Tuckey, a very pleasant duty has fallen to my lot this evening—that of saying a few words by way of explaining our presence here without an invitation, though not without a welcome on your part, I trust. We are apt, in this busy life of ours, to forget some things that we should remember. We hurry and rush along over the highway of life at such lightning speed, that we do not always see the little stones as we pass; hence it is fitting that we pause at one of them, as we have tonight to celebrate, in a quiet way, this twenty-fifth anniversary of your wedded life. Most of us here have known you all these years, and while the pathway has not always been cloudless, yet there has been more joy than sorrow, more sunshine than shadow."

In order that you may not forget this particular day, permit me to present you, in behalf of these friends, this silver water set with these other gifts, as a slight token of the regard in which you are held by us all, and as a tribute to honest worth.

Permit me, also, to tender our hearty congratulations, with an earnest wish for many happy returns of this day and a hope that you both may be spared to celebrate the golden wedding, and that all the clouds in your sky may be like these tokens—with a silver lining.

God grant that we all may look forward confidently to that happy time when the sweet by-and-by when we shall meet around the great white throne to celebrate together the supper of the Lamb."

This part of the programme completed, the fragrant odor of coffee soon greeted the olfactory nerves of the expectant throng, and a toothsome collation was served. Thus ended another of the many pleasant episodes of life, which, scattered here and there along the way, form bright oases in the midst of what might otherwise prove an unbroken stretch of care and toil.

"La Grippe" or something akin to it, is raging in Brooklyn and doing it quite thoroughly. City officials, policemen, firemen and citizens, rich and poor, are numbered among its victims. In most cases the patient is subjected to severe muscular pains, catarrh, great debility, etc., with numerous concomitant discomfures, varying in different cases, some cases running into affections of the bowels and others to those of the lungs. While no instances of death due directly to influenza have been reported, the number of deaths from pneumonia has increased so remarkably as to indicate some connection between the epidemic of so called influenza and pneumonia.

Be Kind to the Children.

Wallace says the mind of man is so great that henceforth his "selection" will replace the primal power of "natural selection," so that it is possible the earth will bear only cultivated plants and tame animals; and Fredericka Bremer thinks man may possibly create "an embezzled race of animals" by the education of a kind and gentle treatment. With what potency, then, comes this truth to the education of children. Here, indeed, is the richest reward of kindness. And how is it possible to look on a child without being touched by the pathos of its helplessness? How fearful harshness is, or cold neglect, and how dreadful are angry punishments to those little beings who cling to us like clusters on a vine! It is by our good graces they must be ripened, and if the vine be bad, what hope for them? And, as before, I have said that there is great vanity and conceit in unkindness, so the kindness of the love of parent or teacher will root well in humility. For who can look on a child without awe, or compare its needs and his own attainments without a fear? —J. V. B., in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
